

The 7 Capacities of Rose in KY

In Rose v. CBE (1989), the Kentucky Supreme Court held that all students in the Commonwealth have a right to an adequate education.

The Court interpreted the state constitution to require the education system to be adequately funded, ensure equality, and be designed to provide every student with these 7 capacities.

Communication Skills

Sufficient oral and written communication skills to enable students to function in a complex and rapidly changing civilization.

Sufficient knowledge of economic, social and political systems to enable the student to make informed choices.

Government Processes

Sufficient understanding of governmental processes to enable the student to understand the issues that affect his or her community, state, and nation.

Mental & Physical Health

Sufficient self-knowledge and knowledge of his or her mental and physical wellness.

Art, History & Culture

Sufficient grounding in the arts to enable each student to appreciate his or her cultural and historical heritage.

Job & College Prep

Sufficient training or preparation for advanced training in either academic or vocational fields so as to enable each child to choose and pursue life work intelligantly.

Measuring Up

Sufficient levels of academic or vocational skills to enable public school students to compete favorably with their counterparts in surrounding states, in academics or in the job market.

Rose Revival

SECURING THE RIGHT TO A QUALITY EDUCATION

Today, the Kentucky Student Voice Team and partners are carrying on the legacy to revisit the Rose case, ensuring that all Kentuckian's are being provided their guaranteed right.
